Sports study urges balance

Southern Illinois University-Carbondale should limit itself to an intercollegiate athletics program "it can afford" and continue its commitment to equality of opportunity for women in intercollegiate athletics, according to the report of a special commission appointed last February to study the future scope and direction of SIUC athletics.

The report of the 15-member SIUC Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics, released Dec. 4, recommends merging men's and women's athletics "within a reasonable and practicable period of time" for increased cooperation and coordination as a means of keeping both programs solvent.

The report also proposes re-establishment of the position of business manager for athletics, creation of a fund-raising position for athletics and retention of the $30-per-semester student athletic fee through the 1982 fiscal year.

The commission was established last winter by then-acting president Hiram H. Lesar after he won board of trustees approval for a temporary $10 increase in the student athletic fee to ease growing financial burdens on SIUC's intercollegiate athletics programs.

President Albert Somit is expected to present the report and give his judgments of its recommendations to the SIUC trustees after he has received evaluations from the University's standing Intercollegiate Athletics Committee and the presidents of the undergraduate and graduate student organizations.

"Balance in the men's program must continue to be a primary goal of the University in the 1980's," the report says, "and the prior success of the women's program should become the foundation for a balanced program in women's athletics equal in all respects to that of the men."

Toward that end, the commission recommends a gradual transition to a "unified administration of the men's and women's programs under one administrative structure." SIUC now has separate directors for men's and women's athletics programs.

Other recommendations made by the commission include:

—No future increases in the student athletic fee should be instituted without students themselves having voted in favor of specific increases;

—SIUC should restudy its athletic conference affiliation in an effort to reduce travel costs, make better use of resources and provide increased spectator enjoyment.

The report states "SIUC should provide leadership for exploring the interest in a new conference and offer facilities for holding a meeting for that purpose. Invitations should be limited to those schools within a radius of approximately 350 miles."

SIUC belongs to the Missouri Valley Conference, which has member schools in New Mexico, Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Indiana and Illinois.

As a possible alternative to future student fee increases the commission proposed several options, including replacement of football with soccer, downgrading of the football program from Division 1A to Division 1AA and elimination of some men's and women's sports.

The SIUC Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics was composed of representatives of campus constituency groups, the community, alumni, retired SIUC employees and at-large members. It was chaired by John E. King, chairman of the SIUC department of higher education.

King said "to my knowledge, the group gathered more data about athletics than any other university has ever obtained about its athletics programs."

Alumni HQ at new site

SIUC's Alumni Association has moved into a new home in the Student Center.

The 1,200-square-foot office suite, located at the south end of the International Lounge, includes offices for the executive director and two assistant directors, a conference room, a storage area, a reception area for two secretaries and an office for the Student Alumni Board.

The move was made so that the Alumni Office will be more conveniently located for SIUC alumni and more visible to SIUC students.

Gentry leaves finance post

Buffum named acting V-P; search planned

Robert E. Gentry, SIUC's vice-president for financial affairs, will leave Feb. 1 to become vice-president for finance at Seton Hall University in South Orange, N.J.

The 55-year-old Gentry joined the SIUC administration in 1976 after a four-year

Robert Gentry

Warren Buffum

stint as associate vice-president of business and finance for the University of Wisconsin system.

He was director of the office for research contracts at Harvard University prior to moving to Wisconsin. Gentry was an administrator in the University of Illinois business office in Champaign-Urbana from 1949 to 1965.

SIUC President Albert Somit announced Jan. 21 that Warren Buffum, associate vice-president and longtime budget planner, will take over for Gentry as acting vice-president. And he said a local search committee will be organized to look for a permanent replacement. The search will be limited to the SIUC campus.

"I have enjoyed working with Mr. Gentry in the brief time I've been here," Somit said. "We are fortunate to have someone as capable as Mr. Buffum to replace him."

Egypt exhibit debuts at SIU

National show arranged by Museum

A new traveling exhibit of ancient and modern art and artifacts from Egypt will make its debut two years from now on the SIUC campus.

Negotiations with the Egyptian government have been completed and a February, 1983, target date has been set for bringing the exhibition to the United States, according to John J. Whitlock, director of the SIUC Museum.

Whitlock went to Cairo early last fall and gained approval from the Egyptian Minister of Culture for the proposed cultural-historical exhibit. It will tour university museums and museums in medium-size cities throughout the United States and Canada after its planned six-months-long premiere at SIUC.

Whitlock said the exhibition would include ancient artifacts dating as far back as Egypt's First and Second Dynasties, approximately 2900 to 2600 B.C. Artifacts and art objects covering some 5,000 years of Egyptian history will be included in the Museum display.

The SIUC exhibition will be part of a week-long academic and cultural symposium on Egypt, according to Whitlock. Symposium planners hope to include a play written for the event by an Egyptian playwright.

Baker named to budget job

Political science prof to deal with planning

SIUC President Albert Somit has named John H. Baker, chairman of SIUC's political science department, to head a new campus office of long-range developmental budgeting.

Baker will work with vice-presidents in planning University programs and resource requirements beyond the immediate future.

"I'll be responsible for trying to develop ways of looking at the University three to five years beyond the current fiscal year," said Baker.

"That means working with the vice-presidents in trying to develop some vision for the University and the resource requirements necessary to carry that out."

Baker will report directly to Somit. Long-range planning responsibilities are not new for Baker. He headed an SIUC Office of Planning, Development and Review in 1971-72 and was assistant provost from 1972-75.

Housing, fees go up this fall

$200 per year hike in room, board rate

On-campus housing and fees are going to take a bigger bite out of student budgets later this year at SIUC.

Action by the University's board of trustees in December upped SIUC's student recreation, revenue bond and student activity fees by a total of more than $13 a semester and boosted room-and-board rates and rents at on-campus housing areas.

The new fees, which will take effect with the fall semester, will up the total full-time students pay each semester in addition to tuition from $160.05 to $173.40. Room-and-board rates at the University's Brush Towers, University Park and Thompson Point single-student housing areas will go up $200 a year, to $1,992, also effective with the fall semester. Rents at SIUC's Southern Hills, Evergreen Terrace, University Courts and Elizabeth Street apartment complexes will go up between $19 and $28 a month, beginning July 1.

Room rent at the Small Group Housing area also will go up, by $94 a year, to $910.

Art donation is $20,000

Mitchell Museum gift benefits area student

Exceptional students from the region who study art at SIUC are going to be the beneficiaries of a new scholarship established by the trustees of Mount Vernon's Mitchell Museum.

The scholarship will come from the proceeds of a $20,000 donation to the SIUC Foundation by the trustees of the Mitchell Foundation and Art Museum. Mitchell Foundation executive vice-president Kenneth R. Miller said the purpose of the scholarship is to encourage students from Illinois' southernmost 34 counties (roughly the region south of Interstate 70) to study art at SIUC.

Recipients of the scholarship will be known as Mitchell Foundation Scholars. Miller said foundation trustees were unanimous in their decision to establish the scholarship at SIUC.

Film history a blockbuster

Massive SIUC-based project at $2 million

A Southern Illinois University-Carbondale professor will edit what experts think will be the largest and most complete history of the movies ever published in English.

Charles Harpole, an assistant professor in SIUC's department of cinema and photography, will be general editor of a planned 10-volume history that will follow the movies from their tentative beginnings in the late 19th century through the present.

The series is budgeted at more than $2 million, most of which is expected to come from grants by the National Endowment for the Humanities, and probably will take more than a decade to complete, Harpole says.

But, Harpole says when it's done it should be the first comprehensive scholarly history of the cinema to be published in English.

Harpole and more than two dozen top cinema historians from around the United States spent three days in organizational seminars and planning sessions in mid-

November at Giant City Lodge, near Carbondale.

Harpole says if everything runs according to schedule, the first volumes could be completed about 1984. The Southern Illinois University Press has agreed to publish the series and to subsidize part of the production costs.

Planning money has come from the National Endowment for the Humanities grants and from SIUC and the John and Mary Markle Foundation.

Harpole said each volume is expected to take about three years and between $120,000 and $150,000 to research and write—"about what you'd pay for a minute of advertising time on 'Monday Night Football.'" It's expected to cost about $20,000 to print the planned 3,000-copy run of each volume.

SIU's still home for Dorothy

*Former First Lady:
she treasures Morris-era memories, but is active as ever on her own.*

He had forgotten his hat and she was happy about it.

She had just graduated from the University of Maine in Orono in June of 1930 and it was August of that same year when an attractive, young bachelor approached her about some speech books.

She was working as a librarian in the University of Maine's library and he was teaching public speaking.

Her first impression was that he was sweet and kind, but also witty, intelligent and an interesting conversationalist. She wanted to see him again. The retrieved hat led to a date and a three-month courtship.

The courtship led to a 50-year marriage (as of Dec. 18) that included 22 "wonderful and exciting" years as the first lady of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Dorothy Arnold Mayo Morris and her husband, Delyte, the eighth president of SIUC, shared an extraordinarily complementary bond. She was warm, gracious and had a terrific memory for people's names, while he was a man—as the St. Louis Post-Dispatch described him—of "enormous vision, immense energy and pervasive powers."

Together as a team their electricity ignited a small teachers college, with an enrollment of fewer than 3,000, and transformed it into a mammoth university.

The metamorphosis wasn't without its trials; Morris' brilliant leadership was often as explosive as it was vibrant. From the time he was selected to succeed President Chester F. Lay in August of 1948, Morris faced many obstructions, not the least of them some intense upstate resentment of the "upstart" school in Carbondale. His singular persuasiveness and perseverance—perhaps the raw ingredients of the SIU success story—seem amazing in retrospect.

"When Delyte spoke, everyone listened whether they liked him or not. He was articulate and convincing," Mrs. Morris said.

A native of Xenia, Morris returned to the region because he felt it needed development and he knew just what he wanted to do, Mrs. Morris said recently in an interview in her Carbondale home in Brush Hills.

"He was a master of whatever he did," she added, her eyes glistening with pride as she spoke of her husband's accomplishments.

"It was interesting to be with Delyte because wherever her went, he generated so much enthusiasm."

For many years, Morris carried a wrinkled, faded list in his billfold of the projects he wished to complete during his reign, checking off each as it was completed.

In the ensuing 21 years, Mrs. Morris watched her husband pursue his dreams. Almost 100 buildings were constructed, the operating budget rose from $2.7 million to more than $113.8 million, the enrollment tripled to almost 37,000 (23,000 at Carbondale and 14,000 at Edwardsville), the faculty had been enlarged from 250 to 3,745 and the number of research projects leaped from three to more than 100.

"Delyte was a born tinkerer and he liked to see that things were done right. Sometimes this caused people to misunderstand him, but he only wanted to do what he thought was proper for the development of the University," she said.

Late in his career, when SIU embraced two growing campuses and hosts of increasingly vocal constituencies, Morris' personal style began to come under critical scrutiny from the press. He was said to be "autocratic," intransigent, and unwilling to let anyone else make major decisions.

Mrs. Morris said the social forces that rocked America's campuses (and America) in the late 60's and 70's worked in tandem with the "President's House" controversy to turn her husband's career, and the Morris Era, around.

By the time Chicago philanthropist-insurance magnate W. Clement Stone had given the SIU Foundation $1 million worth of stock to pay for the official SIU executive residence, newspapers were saying Morris was under pressure to step down.

"I wanted him to retire long before he did, but his fervor to finish what he had started would not allow him to stop. He never wanted to retire. He said he had too many things to do, so I let him go on," Mrs. Morris said.

On Sept. 1, 1970, Morris requested and was granted the position of president emeritus by the SIU's board of trustees, a position he filled for one year. He retired Aug. 31, 1971.

For the next three years the Morris family lived in Washington D.C., where Morris was the executive director of the then newly-founded National Council on Educating the Disadvantaged.

The Morris family returned to their summer home on Kentucky Lake in 1975.

It was in December of 1976 that Mrs. Morris began to notice that her husband had some slowness of speech and movement. Alarmed, she took him to a number of physicians. He later was hospitalized with what doctors thought was a slight stroke, a consequence of a form of arteriosclerosis. It was subsequently diagnosed as Alzheimer's disease, the most pronounced effect of which is mental deterioration.

Currently, he is hospitalized in a Southern Illinois hospital. Mrs. Morris visits him regularly, but prefers that the location of the hospital not be publicized.

"After 46 years of companionship, it is not easy to be alone and it is not always a happy situation, but I try to make the best of it," she said.

After her husband had been hospitalized for some time and she realized he would be there permanently, Dorothy Morris returned to Carbondale in 1977. She had a house built in the new Brush Hills division in the southeast part of the city overlooking the University she loves.

She is active in the community and is a member, by the governor's appointment, of the Illinois Arts Council. She is co-chairman of the Morris Library Endowment Fund, a movement in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the library named after her husband. And she's working with Betty Mitchell, assistant professor of English at SIUC, on a book about her husband.

The center of her life still is her family. Her son, Peter, 43, and his wife, Sharon, have lived in Carbondale this past year. He's a visiting professor of mathematics at SIUC, while on a one-year sabbatical from Shepherd College in Shepherdstown, W. Va., where he is the chairman of the mathematics department.

This enables Mrs. Morris to see her three grandchildren, Douglas, 19, who is a student at Maharishi International University in Fairfield, Iowa; Brett, 16, a Carbondale high school student, and Trevor, 11, a grade school student at Parish School.

Mrs. Morris' younger son, Michael, 39, and his Eastern Indian wife, Rekha, live in Stockholm. He is on a two-year leave of absence from Clemson University where he teaches political science. Michael is working for the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute researching naval arms pacts.

She visited China last year and plans to revisit Stockholm to see Michael and his wife. She tends her roses and takes care of a Japanese garden in front of her home. She learned how to play golf last year.

"Don't feel sorry for me," she says. "I've had a wonderful life and have a lot of things to be thankful for. I love life and if I take a day at a time, I'm very happy."

You'll be getting a questionnaire - soon

In order to upgrade statistical data about the SIUC alumni body, over 70,000 questionnaires will be sent to alumni homes during the end of January or the first part of February.

The information, although strictly confidential, will be used to assist SIUC in forming a statistical profile of the different types of persons who have graduated from the University, what they are doing now and what types of organizations they belong to, Brad Bowen, assistant director of Development and Services, said.

The questionnaire was printed in two 1979 issues of the Alumnus. Over 4,000 questionnaires were returned after those publications, Bowen said.

"We are sending these questionnaires directly to the alumn's homes, hoping we will receive a larger response so that when we try to picture the SIUC alum, we can draw our conclusions from a larger pool of demographic information, Bowen said.

For convenience of the alumnus or alumna, a portion of the questionnaire will include a self-addressed postage-paid return envelope.

"We are not interested in singling out any one person's information, but strictly in forming a composite of that information," Bowen said.

The survey is part of an effort, in conjunction with upgrading of the alumni biographic computer files, to enable the University and the Alumni Association to better serve its alumni, Bowen said.

Elderhostel plans Mexico trip

Older persons will get a chance to sample adventure in two languages this spring during ELDERHOSTEL programs planned by SIUC in Mexico and Southern Illinois.

These springtime adventures include a week-long dose of the outdoors at SIUC's 3,000-acre Touch of Nature Environmental Center near Carbondale and a 14-day immersion in Spanish language and Hispanic culture of Oaxaca, Mexico.

ELDERHOSTEL is a nationwide network of cooperating colleges and universities patterned loosely after the youth hostels scattered across Europe. The idea got its start in 1974 at the University of New Hampshire and now includes more than 300 colleges and universities in all 50 states and several Canadian provinces. It's designed so older persons (at least 60) can "hostel" economically from one campus to another right across the country, taking mini-classes at each stop.

SIUC's season-opening ELDERHOSTEL offerings will begin with the outdoor living course, which will run from April 26 to May 2. Participants will live in rustic cabins at the Touch of Nature center and attend classes in lifestyling, outdoor photography and plant identification (including a tasty section on wild edibles). An intensive dose of camping instruction also will be offered that will focus on hiking, fishing and caving as well as folk dancing and other outdoor activities.

The more adventurous can put their learning into practice in an optional mid-week tenting excursion.

Cost of the week-long program will be $140 per person.

The second offering—scheduled for May 17-31 in Oaxaca, Mexico—will feature a near-saturation exposure to the language and culture of Mexico. Participants will live and eat in a small hotel in Oaxaca and will spend at least two hours a day with Spanish-speaking persons. Side trips will be made to nearby archaeological sites and pottery and textile centers. D. Lincoln Canfield, SIUC professor emeritus and a specialist in Spanish language and Hispanic culture, will be the course instructor and tour guide.

Participants should have a working knowledge of Spanish.

The two-week session is priced at $380, based on two-person rooms. A single room will add $84 to the base price, which includes room, morning and evening meals, and educational expenses. Transportation to and from Mexico, noon meals and tour costs while in Mexico are not included.

A $100 deposit (non-refundable after April 15) is required for both courses. For further information, call or write the SIUC Alumni Office, Student Center, Carbondale, Ill., 62901 (telephone 618-453-2408).

Summer jobs for students

For a good many SIUC students, inflation is taking its toll.

To help them offset the financial burden of their education, the SIUC Alumni Association is seeking assistance in finding summer jobs for students.

For many students, summer jobs are musts if they want to continue their education. Scholarships and loans haven't kept pace with all the students' financial needs. So for many, a summer job is a make-or-break proposition.

Therefore, the Alumni Association is asking you to please get involved in summer job placement.

If you know of any full-time or part-time jobs, or any summer internships, please get in touch with the Alumni Association, Student Center, SIUC, Carbondale, Ill., 62901. Phone (618) 453-2408.

Indicate what the job is, who to reach, the salary, when the position is available and where the job is located.

SIUC students are available to work from May 16 to Aug. 25.

J. Faye Wham and John Page Wham, prominent Centralia couple long active in the life and affairs of SIU, were given distinguished service awards by SIU-Edwardsville at SIUE commencement ceremonies last June. Wham, former

SIU board chairman, was described as one of the University's "founding fathers in its postwar metamorphosis." Mrs. Wham won plaudits for "the ways she has expressed her devotion to her alma mater."

Letter

To Members of the Alumni Association:

I am extremely grateful to the Association for the great honor bestowed on me. To all my former students who have expressed their confidence in me by nominating me for the Great Teacher Award I express many thanks. I am amazed and delighted by the award, and I feel that the honor and attention I have received over recent weeks is all out of proportion with any achievement of mine. I hope that I can grow professionally to become deserving of your support.

Most sincerely and gratefully,

Charles N. Maxwell
 Professor of Mathematics, SIUC

Bill Criswell leaves FM mike

William P. (Bill) Criswell, veteran sports director for the SIUC Broadcasting Service, left campus Jan. 1 to take over as station manager of SIUC's television outlet in Olney (WUSI-TV, ch. 16).

The 53-year-old Criswell had been sports director for SIUC's Broadcasting Service since 1971 and did play-by-play broadcasts of SIUC football and basketball games. He also had been a producer for the broadcasting operation, lectured in the University's department of radio-television and was an academic adviser to radio-television students.

Broadcasting Service Director Jimmy Moore said there are no immediate plans to replace Criswell on the play-by-play microphone. WSIU has been carrying a basketball broadcast feed from Carbondale station WCIL-FM and sportscaster Mike Reis.

Academic Achievement winners named for '80

Eighteen 1980 graduating seniors were honored by the SIUC Alumni Association for achieving perfect 4.0 grade point averages during their academic careers at the University.

The Association presents achievement certificates each year to all seniors with perfect 4.0 grade averages.

The August graduates who were honored are: Robin A. Manna, Highland Park; Richard A. Kreamer, Jacksonville, Fla.; William Thomas Spencer, Jacksonville Fla.; and Gordan Ernest Tyler, Riverside, Calif.

Big year for clubs

1980 was an eventful year for SIUC alumni clubs and professional constituent societies.

Seventeen alumni clubs in Illinois hosted meetings in 1980 and there were 11 alumni gatherings outside the state. Saluki grads renewed old school bonds at get-togethers in Dallas, Houston, Evansville, Terre Haute, McGuire AFB, N.J., Memphis, Milwaukee, Paducah, Omaha, Tempe, Ariz., and Washington, D.C.

Most of the events were tied to basketball or football games: a tailgate party at the SIUC-Northern Illinois University football game; a reception at the November basketball doubleheader in Memphis; pizza parties in Peoria and Terre Haute; a wine tasting party in Evansville; and a pre-basketball game reception in Tempe.

Chicago, Washington and Randolph County alumni hosted picnics and there were dinner meetings with speakers like Gale Sayers or Bill O'Brien. SIUC alumni were cited for their achievements at honors banquets.

"The purpose of these programs is to attract alumni, their families and friends to become involved and interested in SIUC," said Jay King, assistant coordinator of the Alumni Association.

In addition, alumni clubs have set up local scholarships for SIUC freshmen from their club-area high schools. The alumni scholarship program, which started in 1977, has provided 39 scholarships worth $15,000.

County alumni clubs offering scholarships are Franklin (4), Jackson (6), Saline (1), Union (9) and Williamson (17). Jefferson County has started a scholarship fund-raising effort, King said.

The funds are raised annually through telefund campaigns coordinated by the Alumni Association and the SIUC Development and Services office.

Twenty telefunds are being planned for 1981. Dates set so far are those for Jackson County (Feb. 2-5), Franklin County (May 4-7) and Williamson County (Feb. 24-26). Dates for others will be announced later, King said.

"All in all, we were satisfied with the alumni participation in 1980," King said. "Our goal in 1981 is to get more SIUC alumni involved in activities connected with this great institution."

Persons interested in becoming involved in alumni clubs or telefunds should contact King at the Alumni Office in the SIUC Student Center, (618-453-2408).

Keeping pace with the clubs were the constituent societies.

The Engineering and Technology and Home Economics societies both hosted separate professional get-togethers for Springfield alumni.

"There is quite an active core of alumni in Springfield who are interested in getting together," said Bob Odaniell, Alumni Association executive director. "Future events with those groups are still in the planning stages."

The Business and Administration Society is planning a professional meeting for early spring in Chicago. Society members enjoyed a fall luncheon with Camille Becker, a 1957 SIUC graduate who's a public relations executive with the European Common Market.

The School of Medicine Alumni Society held a picnic honoring the Class of 1980. The Society's board of governors' meeting will be held Feb. 26 in Springfield.

On Feb. 27, the School of Agriculture Society will host its annual All Agriculture banquet at the Student Center. The meeting is at 5 p.m. with dinner at 6. Interested persons should contact Dean Gibert Kroening (618-453-2469) for details.

Recreation, higher education and the School of Law have inquired about forming constituent societies, Odaniell said.

Persons interested in getting involved in a constituent society should contact Odaniell (618-453-2408).

Phi Beta Kappa D-Day: December, '81

December of 1981 promises to be an important month for Southern Illinois University-Carbondale. That's when the executive committee of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa will make its recommendation on SIUC's qualifications for a charter in the nation's oldest scholastic honorary society.

A major consideration in the Phi Beta Kappa executive committee's decision will be the report it will receive from a three-person visitation team that recently spent two days at SIUC. The team toured the campus; talked with administrators, faculty members and students; examined the University's library and research facilities, and socialized with faculty members of Phi Beta Kappa.

Visitation team members were Sister Karen Kennelly of the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul, Minn.; Frederick Crosson of the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind.; and Catherine Sins of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa.

"Their aim was to get a good overall impression of the quality of undergraduate programs and students here at SIUC," said James McHose, chairman of the department of psychology and coordinator of the visitors' tour.

"Everyone with whom I spoke, including members of the visitation team, seemed clearly satisfied with the way the visit went. Of course, we'll just have to wait to see what kinds of impressions our visitors got."

Representatives of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa approved the preliminary credentialing report submitted in October, 1979, by a group of SIUC faculty members holding Phi Beta Kappa membership.

faculty support services and other facets of the University was submitted in October, 1980.

Based on recommendations of the executive committee and the committee on qualifications, a membership vote on SIUC's qualifications will be taken in October, 1982, during the organization's national meeting, according to McHose.

Founded in 1776, Phi Beta Kappa is considered the nation's most prestigious academic honorary society for liberal arts and sciences students.

SIUC, which has been trying to win a charter since the early 1940s, would join some 200 other universities throughout the nation if its charter application is approved.

Saltzman takes Massachusetts alum post

Robert (Bob) Saltzman, assistant coordinator of the SIUC Alumni Association since 1977, resigned Dec. 2 to become alumni director at Southeastern Massachusetts University in North Dartmouth, Mass.

Saltzman's main responsibilities at SIUC included the alumni professional constituent societies, the Student Alumni Board, the Job Search Workshops, Homecoming, class reunions, SIUC Day at the DuQuoin State Fair and other special projects.

During his three-and-a-half-year stint, the 27-year-old Quincy, Mass., native initiated the successful SAB Student Birthday Cake Service, helped to develop the New Student Record, a yearbook sponsored by the Alumni Association, and organized alumni activities in the constituent societies.

Robert Saltzman

He and his wife, the former Jean Levins, M.S. '81, of Philadelphia, Pa., will make their home in the North Dartmouth area.

"We'll certainly miss Bob's enthusiasm and ability to work with undergraduates and alumni," Robert Odaniell, executive director of the Alumni Association, said.

Applications for his position are now being accepted. Applicants (SIUC graduates preferred) should hold bachelor's degrees. Responsibilities include establishing and directing programs aimed at undergraduate relations, Homecoming, class reunions, constituent society activities and other special events. Experience in organizational work with volunteers is preferred.

Applicants may submit comprehensive resumes, references and salary requirements prior to Feb. 14, 1981, to Robert Odaniell, Alumni Services, SIUC, Carbondale, Ill., 62901.

Vocational teacher recruitment program established at SIUC

A scholarship program to bring skilled persons back to school for training as high school vocational teachers—including those in agriculture—has been established at SIUC.

A scholarship of up to $500 per year will go to each of 30 persons with experience in agriculture, industrial arts or trade occupations, according to Richard Boss, director of vocational teacher recruitment programs for the Illinois State Board of Education, which is funding the program.

James Legacy, associate professor of agricultural education at the SIUC School of Agriculture, said the stipends will go to persons with at least two years of college, and who are not now enrolled in college.

Legacy said one reason for the program is to help fill the nationwide and statewide needs for agriculture teachers in high schools.

SIUC graduates more students in agricultural education than any other institution in the state. But Legacy said students will not be limited to attending SIUC, which is administering the program for the whole state.

Rocky beginning on Valley road

Guard Lawrence Stubblefield responded to a rare starting assignment against Valparaiso by canning a 12-foot jump shot with 20 seconds left to boost the basketball Salukis to a 70-69 victory in their final pre-conference tuneup Dec. 30, but the win was a costly one.

Center Rod Camp went down with an ankle sprain in the closing moments of that game, and the injury kept Camp on the sidelines for the Salukis' first Missouri Valley Conference game.

Against New Mexico State, coach Joe Gottfried tried three different combinations in hopes of compensating for the loss of his top scorer and number two rebounder before sophomore Karl Morris took charge in the pivot.

The 6-7 Morris, a center during his high school days in Cleveland, came off the bench to score 13 points—game high for the Salukis—against the Aggies, but it was too little too late as SIUC went down to a 56-54 defeat in its conference home opener Jan. 3.

New Mexico State broke out of a two season 0 for 13 slump on the road by allowing the Salukis just five points during the final eight minutes of the first half. Long scoring droughts are becoming characteristic for the Salukis, who took a 7-2 record into the league opener.

Things went from bad to worse two nights later against the rejuvenated Tulsa Hurricane. Coach Nolan Richardson, the 1979-80 junior college coach of the year, had the Hurricane sky high after a conference-opening loss to Creighton, and the result was an 85-67 Tulsa victory in the Tulsa Assembly Center.

Camp played sparingly against the Hurricane, but Tulsa's tenacious defense forced numerous turnovers, and the Hurricane outscored the Salukis 15-5 during the first six-and-one-half minutes of the second half to pull away.

Center Greg Stewart, one of five junior college transfers to join Richardson at Tulsa, led all scorers with 17 points. Two others, forward David Brown and guard Phil Spradling, pitched in 14 and 13 points apiece for the Hurricane.

Guard Johnny Fayne led the Salukis with 14 points and forward Charles Moore grabbed a team-high 10 rebounds.

Camp continues to lead the Salukis in scoring with a 15-points-a-game average, while sophomore Charles Nance leads all rebounders with 10 per game.

Ballhandling has proven to be the Salukis' chief nemesis. Fayne was switched from point guard, an unfamiliar

On the eve of the Salukis' loss to Indiana State, SIUC Athletic Director Gale Sayers was quoted as saying that any decision about Coach Joe Gottfried's future will be made after the season and "will be mine alone." Sayers told Southern Illinoisan sports editor Mike Chamness that Gottfried's program will be up for a three-year evaluation at that time as part of the original agreement made when Gottfried was hired.

Kirsner responded with creditable performances against Northern Illinois and Roosevelt, but the Salukis' offense suffered a near disastrous first-half letdown against Morehead State.

String solo

Sophomore Charles Nance lays in two of his game-total eight points during Salukis' 78-62 loss to Creighton. Defeat was SIUC's third straight in conference action.

But the Salukis followed a 20-point first-half performance with 64 second-half points to pull out an 84-80 thriller Dec. 20 in the Arena.

SIUC was to be at home Jan. 8 and 15 against Creighton and Indiana State, before hitting the road for conference games against Wichita State (Jan. 17) and West Texas State (Jan. 19). Then Bradley's Braves come to the Arena Jan. 24.

The Salukis will take an unusual break from league activity Jan. 27, when they play Loyola in Chicago, before a Jan. 29 rematch with Tulsa in the Arena.

Gymnastics, mat teams start fast

The SIUC Men's gymnastics team got off to a flying start Jan. 14 upsetting seventh-ranked Arizona State 264.15 to 263.9 at the SIU Arena. The Salukis were led by all-around star Brian Babcock.

Babcock won or tied for first in every event to record on all around score of 55.75. His individual scores included a 9.6 in both pommel horse and vaulting, a 9.45 in floor exercise and a 9.4 in rings.

Babcock, a junior, entered the meet with a third-place national ranking in all around. He's receiving considerable support from Freshmen Charles Melton, John Levy and Kevin Mazeika.

Linn Long's Saluki wrestlers are off to one of their better starts with a 4-0 record in dual meet competition. The Salukis have defeated Marquette (24-11), Wisconsin-Oshkosh (41-3), Illinois State (23-18) and Western Illinois (21-19).

The Saluki roster is top heavy with underclassmen. Eric Jones, a 170-pound senior, and Dale Shea, a junior heavyweight, are the only upperclassmen on Long's squad.

Jones has compiled a 17-5 record so far, including matches in several invitational. Sophomore 170-pounder Gus Kallai's 20-4 record is the leading mark among the Salukis. Tim Dillick, a 145-pound sophomore, is 12-8.

The Salukis, who already have bettered their 1979-80 dual meet record of 3-10, were to face Southeast and Southwest Missouri and Oklahoma State in January action before returning to the Arena for seven consecutive meets.

Von Jouanne cracks record

Junior Roger Von Jouanne gave SIUC swimming coach Bob Steele an early Christmas present Dec. 13 when he set an American record in the 200-yard butterfly during the Salukis' Time Standard Invitational, a meet designed to provide participants with an opportunity to meet qualifying times for the national championships.

Von Jouanne's time of 1:45.05 broke the existing U.S. record of 1:45.27 set by Olympics champion Mike Bruner in 1977.

The feat was just one of several accomplished by the 19-year-old from Renton, Wash. Von Jouanne established school records in six events—the 200- and 400-meter individual medley, 100- and 200-meter backstroke, and 100- and 200-meter butterfly.

Von Jouanne's accomplishments during the two-day meet drew raves from Steele.

"In my 20 years of coaching I don't think I've seen or heard of any American swimmer doing what he did in a 24-hour period," said Steele.

Von Jouanne's efforts earned him qualification in all six events for the NCAA Championships in March. His times in the Dec. 13 meet would have placed Von Jouanne among the top six finishers in each event at last year's collegiate championships, according to Steele.

The record-smashing performances came just a few days after Von Jouanne had been named to the United States World Championship team, which is scheduled to compete in New Zealand early this year.

Von Jouanne finished eleventh in the 200-meter butterfly at last year's NCAA meet, earning All-America honors in the event. He also placed thirteenth in the 200-meter individual medley and fifteenth in the 400-meter individual medley.

His record-smashing performance in the 200-meter butterfly is certain to boost Von Jouanne to even higher international ranking in that event than he enjoys in the 200-meter individual medley, where he is rated thirteenth in the world.

A thermal and environmental engineering major, Von Jouanne is a graduate of Hazen High School in Renton. Steele considers him SIUC's most versatile swimmer.

SIU Hall of Fame to add four

Football great Amos Bullocks, track standouts Phil Coleman and Terry Erickson and former football player, coach and longtime faculty member William Freeberg will be inducted into the SIU Hall of Fame Sept. 12.

The quartet of former SIU athletes will join 58 others inducted during the first three years of the Hall of Fame's existence.

Bullocks (1958-61) ranks as one of SIU's all-time great running backs. The Dunbar (Chicago) High School product set several single game, season and career records during his collegiate career. A two-time Little All-America honorable mention, Bullocks held the SIU single season rushing record for 17 years.

The Bull gained 2,441 yards and scored 32 touchdowns at SIU, earning a spot on the Peoria Journal-Star's 1961 all-state team. He played for the Small College Stars in the All-America College Bowl in Tucson, Ariz., after completing his senior season, and was drafted and played briefly for the professional Dallas Cowboys.

Coleman (1948-52) was a track and cross-country standout on several of SIU's most successful teams. An AAU regional champion in the three-mile run and Midwest NAIA champion in the mile, Coleman set longstanding SIU records in both events.

The highlight of Coleman's collegiate career was a second-place finish in the 1952 NAIA national championships. Coleman lowered his own school record in the two-mile event by more than 23 seconds to 9:27.0 in finishing behind West Texas State's Juarez Montez.

Coleman went on to earn a spot on the 1956 U.S. Olympics team and ran in the 3,000-meter steeplechase event at the Melbourne, Australia, Olympiad. He set an American record while winning the event in the 1957 Pan American Games in Chicago.

Erickson (1971-1974) was a standout quarter-miler and a member of two of SIU's greatest relay teams. He ran on the mile-relay team that finished fourth in the 1972 NCAA Championships and won Central Collegiate, Midwestern Conference, Kentucky and Kansas Relays titles.

The 880-yard relay team of Erickson, world-record-holder Ivory Crockett, Eddie Sutton and Stan Patterson won titles at the Kansas, Kentucky and Drake Relays, defeating some of the outstanding collegiate teams in the nation.

Erickson won 440-yard dash titles at the Illinois Intercollegiate, Central Collegiate, Midwestern Conference and Southern Cup meets, and held the school record in the event for several years. He also was a member of several U.S. international teams after his graduation.

Freeberg (1938-1941) was co-captain of the 1940 SIU football team along with fellow Hall of Famer J.T. English. He was assistant football coach under Glenn "Abe" Martin and director of the SIU intramural athletics program for several years.

A pioneer in the field of recreation for the handicapped, Freeberg was architect of the University's residential camping program at Little Grassy Lake, one of the nation's first such efforts for the handicapped.

Freeberg was a special consultant to the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation for several years, and was a founding father of the Special Olympics program for mentally handicapped individuals. He retired in 1980 after 38 years on the SIUC recreation and outdoor education department faculty.

Special plaques honoring the four new Hall of Famers will be placed in the Hall of Fame area in the SIUC Student Center.

Saluki women

Youthful cagers take some lumps

Three losses in three games to Chicago-area foes is not the kind of Christmas present women's basketball coach Cindy Scott had in mind but holiday defeats at the hands of DePaul (74-73), Northwestern (90-77) and the University of Illinois Chicago-Circle (88-78) haven't dimmed Scott's optimism.

"I was disappointed in our showing against Chicago-Circle because they're a team we should have beaten, but it came at the end of a tiring road trip and our other performances in Chicago indicate we're going to be a team to be reckoned with by the time the state tournament rolls around," said Scott.

The Salukis featured a lineup composed of four freshmen at times during their Chicago trip. First-year guards D.D. Plab and Rosalyn Bartley were inserted in the starting lineup against Northwestern, and Scott said their performances earned them continuing consideration as starters.

The rebounding and scoring of senior Leola Greer was another highlight of the pre-Christmas games, according to Scott.

"We're young and we make the mistakes that go along with youthfulness and inexperience, but we expect to have a lot of that ironed out by state tournament time (Feb. 26-28)."

"Opposing coaches know we have the talent, and that the game experience between now and tournament time will make SIU a contender," said Scott.

The Salukis were to put their youthfulness to a test Jan. 8-10 in the Pizza Hut Classic in Wichita. They were to face nationally ranked Stephen F. Austin in the first round of that tourney, which included Illinois, Arkansas, Minnesota, Oregon, New Mexico, and Wichita State.

Swimming

A top-15 national ranking is the goal of women's swimming coach Tim Hill, and after the Salukis' pre-Christmas performance in the Saluki Time Standard Meet that goal looks like a realistic one.

Several of the Salukis' 23 school and 23 state records were set during the meet. SIUC swimmers won nine of 14 events. Freshman Barb Larsen took firsts in six of the seven events she entered. She also swam to a second-place finish in the 1,650 yard freestyle.

Although team scores were not kept, the freshman-laden Salukis would have edged nationally ranked Auburn by six points in team standings.

The Salukis will test their lofty ambitions after the holidays when they travel to Alabama on Jan. 10 and Indiana on Jan. 17.

Salukis already have qualified for the national AIAW meet in 25 events.

Saluki Sports Shorts

by Fred Huff

The holiday season is high school basketball tournament season in Southern Illinois and former Salukis and SIUC grads were conspicuous at the four major meets throughout the area.

At the 17th annual Carbondale Holiday Tournament held in the SIU Arena we naturally saw an important duo from the host Community High School—superintendent Reid Martin and head coach Doug Woolard and East High principal Charles Warren.

Two former Salukis from Southwestern Illinois, Russ Keene of Collinsville and Wayne Williams of Alton, were frequent visitors to the hospitality room. Russ led his Kahok baseball team to the Illinois state championship last year and Wayne has returned to this part of the country as athletic director and football coach after serving coaching stints at both Illinois State and the University of Illinois.

Tim Ricci, who played under the late Paul Lambert here in the early 1970s, had his West Frankfort team in the tourney and fared well in the consolation bracket after losing the opener.

A fan seen unexpectedly at the thrilling Carbondale-Murphysboro semi-final contest was SIU Hall of Famer Sam Silas. Sam, now an administrator at a small New England college, was there to watch his son, Terry, who is a sophomore at Carbondale. Other CCHS players with SIU ties are Mark Gottfried, son of Saluki head basketball coach Joe Gottfreid, and Barney Welch, son of SIU Student Life Dean Harvey Welch Jr.

At the prestigious Centralia tournament, now in its 38th year, we ran into more administrators than ex-athletes. Bob Jones, who coached for many years at Centralia, is now athletic director there and is quick to extend all sorts of favors to SIU representatives. His son, Bob, who is expecting to earn a degree in law at SIU soon, was one of the game officials.

Others included Dick Carpenter, former Saluki football star and now head coach at Centralia, and the veteran Lee Cabutti, a longtime head basketball coach at Champaign Central. Dick didn't pass up the opportunity of introducing several of his promising young athletes to SIU athletic director Gale Sayers who later created a traffic jam with autograph seekers.

At the upstart Eldorado tourney, we saw several former Salukis who were there in head coaching roles. Joe Hosman, a recent football letterman at SIU, was in charge of the host team Eagles. Dave Lee, a mid-1960s standout under Coach Jack Hartman, is coaching McLeansboro's Foxes and has a son, Darin, contributing in a major way.

Bob Dallas, a Saluki from way back, is still coaching at Ridgway and was well represented at the tourney. Still another out of the past was Bill Garrett who is now athletic director at Fairfield.

Also noticed two former Salukis among past all-tournament team selections. Joe Tison, Harrisburg, lettered in football at SIU after being selected on the 1967 all-tourney team, and Barry Smith, former Eldorado great, was honored in 1975. Barry, of course, is the same Smith who thrilled Saluki fans for four years before graduating last spring. He's now working in DeKalb.

And, finally, at Breese Mater Dei we were greeted by host athletic director John Cavaletto and one of his aides, Mike Abegg. Mike, who was a football letterwinner at SIU in the mid-1970's, was still flying high after directing his Mater Dei football team into the state playoff series this past fall.

New dean stresses human needs

It took two years to find the right person to fill the vacated dean's chair in the College of Human Resources—but the wait was well worth it, according to administration officials at SIUC.

Samuel Goldman, former dean at Ohio University, took over the helm of the college Aug. 1. The 45-year-old Goldman said he looks forward to working in a program with such "enormous potential."

Goldman said his two main goals will be to encourage community service (in such areas as administration of justice, social work and rehabilitation) and to promote scholarly research by encouraging outside funding and boosting grant support.

"The recent elections have shown that the country is leaning toward the right. Some think, as a result of this, that the nation will show less and less concern for human needs—but I don't agree," Goldman said in a recent "State of the College" address.

"The next few years will see a more intense questioning of human needs. It's going to be a challenging time—and as professionals in human and social need services we cannot stand detached," Goldman said.

Stanley H. Smith, the first dean of the College of Human Resources at SIUC, left in July, 1978, to become president of Shaw University.

Goldman, who received his doctorate from the University of Chicago, comes to SIUC after eight years at Ohio University at Athens. From 1972 to 1978, he was dean of the school's College of Education. He became acting dean of the school's College of Health and Human Services for a year after having helped found the college in 1978.

At SIUC, Goldman replaced acting Dean Seymour Bryson. Bryson now becomes associate dean of the college.

Goldman said he is pleased with the program he has inherited.

"We have some fine nationally recognized programs and some extraordinarily productive faculty members," he said. "For instance, we have the only doctorate of rehabilitation program offered in the United States."

Other divisions within the College of Human Resources include comprehensive planning and design, food and nutrition, social and community services, Black American Studies and the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections.

Morris Library Endowment

Drive at one-third mark

An endowment fund which has been set up at the SIUC Foundation to commemorate the 25th anniversary of Morris Library in 1981, is one-third of the way toward the $100,000 goal.

The fund—now containing $27,115—was established by the Friends of Morris Library with the help of the SIUC Development and Services office after receiving an initial gift of $2,500 from John and Agnes Wright of Carbondale, according to Kenneth G. Peterson, dean of library affairs.

The gift was made in memory of Mrs. Wright's parents. Her father, Eli Lentz, was on the SIUC faculty from 1914 to 1952 and was dean of men from 1935 to 1945. He died in 1963.

The McCormick Charitable Trust of Chicago has pledged $25,000 if $75,000 can be raised from other sources.

With the investment income from the endowment, the Friends of Morris Library hope to purchase former library director Ralph McCoy's "Freedom of the Press" collection.

Unlike most major academic institutions, SIUC has never had an endowment for its library. While major acquisitions of current journals, books and other materials for instructional purposes are provided by state appropriations, Morris Library needs non-state funds to support purchases of unique and rare materials for the Special Collections Divisions, Peterson said.

In the last 25 years, Morris Library has developed impressive collections in such areas as Southern Illinois history and culture, American philosophy of the 20th century, John Dewey papers, Ulysses S. Grant, American and British expatriate writers and Irish Renaissance literature.

Donations, preferably in multiples of $25, should be made to the SIUC Foundation, 909 W. Chautauqua, Carbondale, Ill., 62901. Checks should be made payable to the SIUC Foundation. Donors should indicate they wish the money to go toward the Morris Library Endowment Fund. Contributions are tax deductible.

Founder of wrestling program

James (Jim) Wilkinson dies

Former SIUC wrestling coach James J. Wilkinson died Dec. 11 after suffering a heart attack at his home. He was 63.

Mr. Wilkinson, professor of physical education, had served as interim chairman of the newly-combined department of men's and women's physical education from 1977 to 1978. He first came to SIUC in 1949 and established wrestling as a varsity sport the following year.

He was head wrestling coach for 17 years between 1950 and 1968, during which time his teams compiled a 96-51-6 record. In 1964, he was named national coach of the year after the Salukis tied for fourth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Division I championships, the highest finish for any SIUC wrestling team. Mr. Wilkinson was named to the Illinois Wrestling Hall of Fame early last year.

James Wilkinson

Among survivors are his wife, Mildred, an instructor in the department of foreign languages and literatures; a daughter, Carol, of Mount Vernon, and son, Jay, of Chesterfield, Mo.

Memorial donations are being accepted for a special scholarship fund to be established in Mr. Wilkinson's name at the SIUC Foundation.

Alumni Life Memberships

Honor Stanton, McHenry

Donald McHenry and Frank Stanton have been awarded honorary life memberships in the SIUC Alumni Association.

Both men received honorary SIUC degrees at spring commencement exercises last year. The Alumni Association's Legislative Council voted at Homecoming to give McHenry and Stanton life memberships.

McHenry, a 1959 master's degree SIUC graduate, is the United States Ambassador to the United Nations. Stanton, former president of CBS Inc., is a recipient of the Peabody Award in 1961 for organizing the Kennedy-Nixon "Great Debates" and he claimed a special Peabody Award in 1972 for his defense of broadcast journalism and the "people's right to know."

May Dorsey, -2, returned to Carbondale in 1945 determined to take it easy. She was celebrating her retirement after having taught music for 35 years in Indiana schools. However, she thought she was just "too young" to quit so she spent most of 1947 substitute teaching in the Carbondale schools. This was her last formal stint, but since then she has taught literally hundreds of area children how to play the piano. Currently, she has eight pupils. Church activities take up a large chunk of her time. Besides teaching a Sunday School class for seniors, she is writing a book on the history of the First Baptist Church, to which she's belonged since 1903. She says she depends mostly on her memory for research material.
